EDITORIAL

THE FIGHT AGAINST DRUGS
MUST NOT BECOME A WAR AGAINST PEOPLE

“Prevention must begin at home; education must be scientific; investigation must be fair; prisons must be reformed; because real change, not punishment, is what builds a drug-free India.”

FAMILY – THE FIRST LINE OF PROTECTION

Families shape a child's values, confidence and life habits. Open communication, attention and love at home help children choose the right path and stay away from drugs.

TEACH MORE THAN ‘JUST SAY NO’

Go beyond slogans. Teach refusal skills, decision-making, peer pressure management and goal setting. This makes young people strong enough to say no.

END THE SILENCE ON ADOLESCENT HEALTH

Adolescents face many questions about body, mind and relationships. Open conversations reduce myths and risky behaviour.

MIND MATTERS FROM THE BEGINNING

Children must learn how to manage stress, emotions and failures. Strong mental health from an early age builds resilience against addiction.

ACCUSED IS NOT CONVICTED

Everyone accused of a crime deserves respect and fair treatment. Dignity must be protected throughout the legal process.

HOW DRUGS HARM THE DEVELOPING BRAIN

Drug use affects memory, attention, judgement and emotions. Early use can cause long-term damage.

LAW AND HEALTH – BOTH ARE ESSENTIAL

Strict laws are needed, but so is a health-focused approach. The aim should be recovery and reintegration, not just punishment.

PRISONS MUST CORRECT, NOT CORRUPT

Prisons should be centres for reform, counselling, education and skill training – not places that deepen crime.

MANDATORY PROFESSIONAL
COUNSELLING FOR NDPS PRISONERS

All NDPS cases must receive expert counselling to address root causes and support long-term recovery.

FAIR INVESTIGATION, FAIR JUSTICE

Every investigation must be fair, transparent and free from bias. No one is beyond the law, but everyone deserves due process.

SEXUAL & REPRODUCTIVE HEALTH MATTERS

Fertility, relationships and safety are part of a complete recovery. Young people must be guided correctly on these sensitive topics.

SECOND CHANCE AFTER RELEASE

Rehabilitation should not end at release. Education, skills, job support and family reintegration help rebuild a life of dignity.

“Drug control must be strong. Organised trafficking must be crushed. Children must be protected before they reach drugs. The returning must be treated with respect and supported to rebuild a life. The real measure of success is not how many we put behind bars, but how many we keep away from drugs and give a second chance to live with dignity.”

INVESTIGATION DESK

THE THREAT IS CHANGING

EMERGING DRUG THREATS

THE NEW FACE OF THE DRUG THREAT

SYNTHETIC DRUGS, DARKNET MARKETS AND DIGITAL DELIVERY NETWORKS ARE RESHAPING THE NARCOTICS CHALLENGE

The narcotics challenge is changing rapidly. The traditional image of drug trafficking — physical dealers, identifiable routes and face-to-face transactions — no longer captures the full dimensions of the threat.

Synthetic psychoactive substances, encrypted communication, darknet marketplaces, social-media contacts, digital payments, courier networks and disguised consignments are creating new challenges for enforcement agencies, families and educational institutions.

The danger is not merely that new substances are entering the market. It is that the methods of access, communication, concealment and distribution are becoming increasingly difficult for ordinary families to recognise.

“Tomorrow’s narcotics challenge may not look like yesterday’s. Our preparedness must change with it.”

THE DRUG MARKET IS GOING DIGITAL

- Technology has transformed legitimate commerce — and criminal networks can also attempt to exploit digital systems.
- Encrypted messaging, social-media accounts, darknet platforms, virtual identities and digital payments are increasingly part of the narcotics ecosystem.
- For enforcement agencies, the digital trail can be as important as the physical trail.

SYNTHETIC DRUGS: A DIFFERENT KIND OF CHALLENGE

Unlike plant-derived drugs, many synthetic substances can potentially be produced through chemical processes using precursor materials.

The composition, purity and potency of illicitly manufactured substances may vary significantly.

A person purchasing an illegal pill or powder may have no reliable way of knowing exactly what it contains or how strong it is.

This unpredictability can substantially increase health risks.

WHAT MAKES THE THREAT DIFFERENT?

- Changing chemical formulations
- Uncertain purity and potency
- Risk of adulteration or contamination
- Smaller quantities easier to conceal
- Digital communication connects buyers and sellers
- Distribution across jurisdictions

FROM STREET DEALER TO DELIVERY NETWORK

A narcotics transaction need not always take place at a familiar street corner.

Criminal networks may attempt to misuse legitimate logistics systems, courier services, parcels and other delivery channels to distance organisers from the final recipient.

The challenge for enforcement is to disrupt such misuse without treating ordinary commercial activity as suspicious.

THE HIDDEN DANGER OF COUNTERFEIT PILLS

A tablet obtained outside legitimate medical channels may resemble a pharmaceutical product while containing a different substance or an unpredictable quantity of an active ingredient.

Appearance is not proof of composition.

AN UNKNOWN PILL IS AN UNKNOWN RISK.

Prescription medicines should be used only under appropriate medical guidance, and medicines obtained through illegal channels should never be assumed to be genuine or safe.

SOCIAL MEDIA: WHEN A SCREEN BECOMES THE FIRST CONTACT

Parents once worried mainly about whom their children met outside the home.

Today another question matters: Who is reaching them through the screen?

Social-media platforms and private messaging can expose young people to strangers, misleading content, peer pressure and potentially illegal offers.

Digital awareness is now part of drug prevention.

INVESTIGATION MUST EVOLVE WITH THE CRIME

THE MODERN INVESTIGATION TOOLKIT

INTELLIGENCE

Identify networks rather than targets; only a link is as strong as the person in the chain.

DIGITAL FORENSICS

Lawfully examine relevant electronic evidence.

FINANCIAL INVESTIGATION

Follow suspected proceeds and financial flows where legally permitted.

INTER-STATE COORDINATION

Tracking networks across regions and state boundaries.

FORENSIC SCIENCE

Accurate identification of seized substances is fundamental to evidence-based investigation.

INTERNATIONAL COOPERATION

Cross-border trafficking action across jurisdictions.

EMERGING THREATS REQUIRE EMERGING PREVENTION

Schools need scientifically accurate drug education.

Parents need digital awareness.

Doctors and mental-health professionals must be part of prevention.

Young people need refusal skills and reliable information.

Technology, logistics, finance and government must work within law and privacy.

THE OBJECTIVE: Make it progressively harder for organised networks to reach vulnerable people.

WHAT PARENTS SHOULD KNOW

- Know your child’s normal behaviour.
- Maintain regular communication.
- Discuss online safety.
- Know their peer environment without humiliating them
- Watch for significant unexplained changes. If there is concern, seek professional guidance -not accusation or fear.

TRUST CREATES THE CONVERSATION THROUGH WHICH PREVENTION BECOMES POSSIBLE.

NNI INVESTIGATION PRINCIPLE

- FOLLOW THE DRUG.
- FOLLOW THE MONEY.
- FOLLOW THE DIGITAL TRAIL.
- BUT FOLLOW THE EVIDENCE.

An effective investigation must be technologically capable and uncompromising against organised trafficking — but it must also remain evidence-based, lawful and fair.

The purpose of modern narcotics investigation is not simply to increase the number of accused persons. It is to identify the real network, establish individual responsibility and dismantle the machinery that keeps the illegal market alive.

THE NEXT BATTLEFIELD IS ALREADY HERE

- New substances may emerge.
- Distribution methods may change.
- Technology will continue to evolve.
- Criminal networks may adapt.
- The response must evolve faster — through science, intelligence, prevention, international cooperation and responsible law enforcement.

THE DRUG THREAT IS CHANGING. OUR PREPAREDNESS MUST CHANGE WITH IT.

TELANGANA RECORDS 46.10% SURGE IN NARCOTICS CASES

Cases rise from 2,026 to 2,960 in three years; Cyberabad and Warangal report sharp increases

NNI NATIONAL BUREAU | HYDERABAD

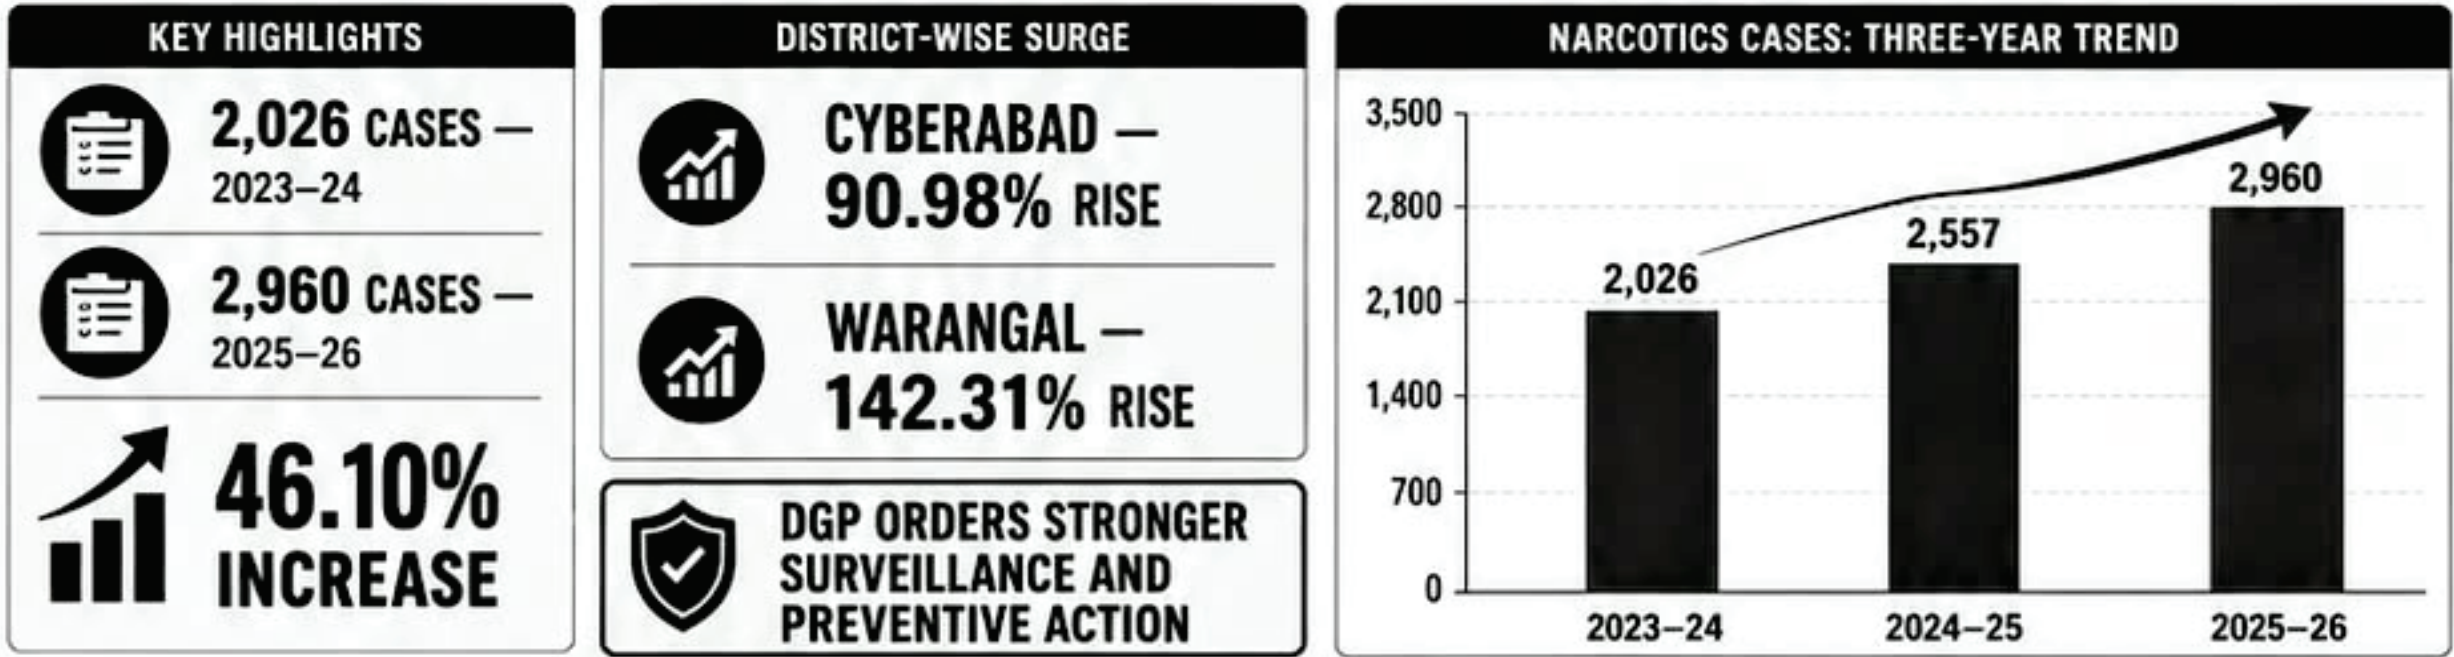

Telangana has recorded a significant increase in narcotics-related offences, with the number of cases rising from 2,026 in 2023–24 to 2,960 in 2025–26. The increase of 46.10 per cent over three years has emerged as a major concern for the State Police.

The figures were presented during a half-yearly crime review meeting chaired by Telangana Director General of Police C. V. Anand. Senior police officers from different units participated in the review. Hyderabad recorded a 90.98 per cent rise in narcotics cases, increasing from 266 to 508. Warangal reported an even sharper increase of 142.31 per cent during the same period.

The DGP directed police units to strengthen surveillance, improve intelligence gathering and identify emerging narcotics networks at an early stage. Officers were also instructed to conduct detailed monthly reviews and intensify preventive measures in vulnerable areas.

Police authorities have emphasised that crime reviews must go beyond statistics and examine trafficking patterns, methods used by offenders, quality of investigation and the progress of cases through the judicial process.

‘OPERATION BLACK HAWK’ HITS INTER-STATE HEROIN NETWORK

CBN seizes 18.64 kg of crude heroin in back-to-back operations near Lucknow; three arrested as investigators turn focus to supply and distribution links

LUCKNOW | NNI NEWS DESK

In a major operation against inter-state narcotics trafficking, the Central Bureau of Narcotics (CBN) has seized 18.64 kg of crude heroin in two coordinated operations near Lucknow, Uttar Pradesh, and arrested three alleged members of an inter-state trafficking network. The operation, code-named ‘Operation Black Hawk,’ was carried out jointly by CBN units from Madhya Pradesh and Uttar Pradesh following intelligence about movement of narcotics from the North-East towards Lucknow. During the intervening night of August 30-31, CBN teams established surveillance along the Sultanpur- Lucknow Highway and tracked an Assam-registered Hyundai Creta through multiple toll plazas. The vehicle was intercepted near Lucknow on August 31. According to the CBN, officers became suspicious after questioning the occupants and fuel tank. Technical dismantling revealed a specially fabricated cavity containing 35 waterproof packages with 16.48 kg of crude heroin. Two suspects were arrested.

In a separate intelligence-led action, CBN officers tracked a heavy commercial vehicle travelling along the Sultanpur-Lucknow corridor and intercepted it near Barabanki. A search reportedly uncovered another concealed chamber built into the vehicle body, from which 2.16 kg of crude heroin was recovered. A third suspect was arrested. Both vehicles and the seized narcotics were confiscated. The three accused have been booked under provisions of the Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act, 1985. Authorities are now pursuing financial and logistical leads to identify alleged upstream suppliers and downstream distribution channels connected with the network.

56 KG METHAMPHETAMINE HIDDEN WITH MAIZE SEIZED AT NAVA SHEVA

DRI foils alleged attempt to export synthetic drug to Saudi Arabia; two arrested

NAVI MUMBAI | NNI NEWS DESK

The Directorate of Revenue Intelligence (DRI) has seized approximately 56 kg of methamphetamine from an export consignment at Nava Sheva Port in a major interception targeting transnational drug trafficking. The intelligence-led operation was conducted on August 16 and 17. According to the DRI, the methamphetamine, in powder form, had been concealed by mixing it with maize in one of 351 bags forming part of an export consignment destined for Saudi Arabia. The method appears to have been designed to disguise the narcotic as part of an ordinary agricultural shipment and evade routine examination. Investigations subsequently identified the exporter and the transporter/freight forwarder allegedly involved in the shipment. The DRI said its investigation indicated that the transporter/freight forwarder had been coordinating with an overseas buyer regarding transportation and customs clearance. Both persons were arrested under the NDPS Act. The case highlights the increasingly sophisticated concealment techniques being encountered by enforcement agencies in international narcotics trafficking.

SNACK PACKETS TRIGGER DRUG INTERCEPTION AT CHENNAI AIRPORT

Customs and NCB recover 14,437 grams gross weight of suspected contraband from passenger arriving from Bangkok

CHENNAI | NNI NEWS DESK

A joint operation by the Air Intelligence Unit of Chennai Customs and the Narcotics Control Bureau led to the seizure of 14,437 grams gross weight of suspected contraband at Chennai International Airport. An Indian woman arriving from Bangkok on August 22 was intercepted following passenger profiling and targeted baggage screening. Officials detected suspicious images during X-ray examination of her checked-in luggage. A detailed inspection subsequently revealed suspected contraband concealed inside six Thai snack packets. The NCB seized the material and arrested the passenger under the NDPS Act. She was remanded to judicial custody while further investigation continued. The official release describing the interception identified the seized material as “suspected contraband”; it did not specify the substance in the information released at the time.

THE CONCEALMENT GAME

From fuel tanks to food consignments, traffickers continue to test enforcement systems

Recent seizures reveal the diverse concealment techniques allegedly being used by narcotics networks.

* In Operation Black Hawk, crude heroin was discovered inside specially fabricated cavities in a car fuel tank and a commercial vehicle.
* At Nava Sheva, methamphetamine was allegedly mixed with maize in an export consignment.
* At Chennai International Airport, suspected contraband was recovered from Thai snack packets carried in checked baggage. The cases underline a central challenge facing enforcement agencies: trafficking networks continually alter routes, packaging and concealment methods in an attempt to elude conventional screening. Intelligence gathering, profiling, inter-agency coordination, financial investigation and technology-assisted examination therefore remain critical components of narcotics enforcement.

OPERATION TOOFAN

KERALA INTENSIFIES ITS WAR AGAINST DRUGS

Home Minister Ramesh Chennithala outlines a stronger second phase, taking the anti-narcotics campaign from enforcement operations to neighbourhoods and households across the State

NNI BUREAU | THIRUVANANTHAPURAM

Kerala's fight against narcotics is entering a more intensive phase as Operation Toofaan, the State's coordinated anti-drug campaign, prepares to expand beyond enforcement operations into a wider community-driven movement. Launched on June 2, 2026, Operation Toofaan was conceived as a sustained offensive against drug trafficking, synthetic narcotics, interstate supply networks and organised distribution systems operating within Kerala. The campaign brought together enforcement and government departments, with the police spearheading intensified action against narcotic networks. Under the leadership of Kerala Home Minister Ramesh Chennithala, the Government has indicated that the campaign will not end with arrests and seizures. Its next phase is intended to strengthen prevention, intelligence gathering and public participation, taking the fight against drugs closer to families, neighbourhoods and local communities.

- * Formation of “Toofaan Warriors” at the panchayat level.
- * Involvement of Kudumbashree, ASHA workers, Haritha Karma Sena, women's organisations, youth groups and community institutions
- * Early identification of risk, awareness generation and preventing vulnerable individuals from falling into drug abuse and trafficking networks.

TARGETING INTERSTATE AND DIGITAL DRUG NETWORKS

- * Stronger coordination and intelligence sharing among southern states.
- * Tracking of financial trails linked to drug trade.
- * Focus on online platforms, dark web, courier routes, trains, buses and new-age distribution channels.
- * A combination of field policing, intelligence, financial investigation and technology-based surveillance.

FROM A POLICE OPERATION TO A PEOPLE'S MOVEMENT
